NOT THE SOLE HEIR.

A Stepmother Appeared When Suddenly Wilson's Father Died.

Claims He Was Shanghaled and His Wife Remarried and Died.

Now He Sues to Recover $34,000 of the Estate.

The case of Jacob Wilson against John J. Clancy, for the recovery of $34,000 worth of property, was called for trial in Part IV, of the Supreme Cour to-day and develops sufficient of the mysterious element to comprise the plot for a Bowery drama. Wilson, in his complaint, alleges that he married Mary Saunders in 1887 at his father's suggestion.

He thought he was his father's only heir, but when the old man died a woman and two children appeared. She claimed to be the second wife, and substantiated her claim in court.
In consequence of this Wilson received nly $75,000 as his share of the estate. Shortly afterwards his wife instituted proceedings against him for a divorce. Before the case was heard Wilson myseriously disappeared. It was supposed be had committed suicide in a fit of Mrs. Clancy died June 4, 1833, leaving considerable property to her second husband.

Then Wilson, her first husband, turned up with a remarkable story.

He claimed that while partially intoxicated he was shanghaied on board the sailing vessel Creedmor, bound for Australia. He remembered seeing his wife shortly before he sailed, and claimed she was in a conspiracy to get rid of him.

Wilson started life anew in Australia, but made a failure of it. He finally worked his way to San Francisco, and eventually reached here to find that his wife had remarried and died.

He consulted Lawyer Walter Carroll, who brought the action to recover the property from his wife's second husband.

A large number of witnesses are on hand to testify before Judge Lawrence.

An agreement dated May is 1888, between Jacob Wilson and his wife, Mary A., wherein the former transfers to his wife all his right, title and interest in his share of his father's estate, Wilson to receive therefor the sum of $2,000 on the settlement of the estate, and $75 as a consideration for signing the agreement, was also repudiated by him as a forgery.
